

Canadians' Grand Reception in England.

Another British Disaster

DEWETSDOP GARRISON SURRENDERS 400 MEN AND TWO GUNS.

Bitter Comments of British Press.

A Minor British Success.

Winnipeg, Nov. 30th, '00.

London, Nov. 30th. Lord Roberts cables from Johannesburg under date of Nov. 28th: "The Dewetsdop garrison of two guns of the sixteenth field battery, with 400 men of the Gloucestershire Regiment, Highland Light Infantry, and Irish Rifles, 400 in all, surrendered at 5.30 p. m. on Nov. 28th. Our losses were fifteen men killed and forty-two wounded, including Major H. J. Anson and Capt. Digby. The enemy are said to be 2,500 strong. Fourteen hundred men were despatched from Edenburg to relieve Dewetsdop, but did not succeed in reaching there in time. The Boers, joined in force and found Dewetsdop evacuated. Seventy-five sick and wounded were left there. Gen. Knox pursued and is reported to have successfully engaged Sley and De Wet near the Vaal bank. The Boers retired west and south-west. Gen. Knox's messenger failed to get through. I have no details."

London, Nov. 30th. The Telegraph and the Express, which do not accept the unfavorable reports as to the surrender to the chief commander of the South Africa, say they understand Lord Kitchener is to assume control today. The Post says: "The surrender at Dewetsdop looks still worse, in the light of the suggestion that probably half the towns that were garrisoned in the territories of the Republic are in no better situation to resist attacks. The Standard describes this affair as deplorable, unnecessary and at the present juncture doubly unfortunate."

London, Nov. 29. It has transpired that Mr. Joseph Chamberlain's visit to Malta, ostensibly a pleasure trip, is primarily undertaken for the purpose of examining on the spot the merits of the long-standing dispute in regard to the use of the Italian language as an official medium. It may be confidently stated that the colonies minister had decided that the official language must be English after the expiration of an interregnum the length which has not yet been determined. The French and some Italian newspapers have been busily endeavoring to make an international question out of the change, but their efforts are not destined to be in the least successful.

London, Nov. 29.—A dispatch to a news agency from Pekin says that Col. York, in command of the German columns, is lying at the point of death at a village between Kalagan and Pekin. His illness was caused by inhaling fumes from a stove, in a bedroom. Count Von Waldersee will take in Col. York's column.

Orange River, Nov. 29th: General Herzon, in command of five hundred Boers holding a splendid position on a range of precipitous rocks near the village of Tuckoff, completely barring the British advance, attacked Colonel Henry Hamilton Selbie's column Tuesday morning. After five hours fighting the Boers were expelled from the position losing heavily. The British losses were small.

London, Nov. 29th: A detachment of 250 men belonging to the Royal Canadian Regiment, Col. Otter commanding, which have just reached England from South Africa by the Hawarden Castle, arrived in London today, and proceeded to Kensington barracks. Since their arrival at Southampton, where they were welcomed by Major-General MacGregor Stewart, the Canadians have been everywhere greeted with tumultuous applause. General Stewart made a brief speech to the Canadians, during which he said Englishmen rejoiced at their heavy and arduous work as much as they rejoiced over the honors achieved by the home troops and their kinsmen from all the colonies brought together by the war. Col. Otter expressed his thanks for these sympathetic utterances and the Canadians took the train for London. The reception of the Canadians in London was most enthusiastic. Large crowds at the railroad station cheered and re-cheered them, and the whole route from the station to the barracks was lined with a similarly cordial throng. Flags, including many Canadian emblems, were displayed in splendid order and appeared to be in perfect condition. While they were drawn up in the barracks square the Duke of Albequerque, chairman of the reception committee, congratulated them on their achievements. General Trotter followed in a similar strain. He also read a letter from the Duke of Connaught, eulogizing the work of the Canadians. The Canadians will be reviewed by the Queen.

—The ladies of the Woman's hospital and society will give a reception at the opening of the public hospital on Monday, Dec. 10th.

—The mild weather is helping out the threshers in great shape. From all parts come reports of good samples of grain, but small yields, especially compared with the amount of straw.

—Rev. C. E. Somerset, principal of Red Deer school, came in on Monday night and left the following day with Rev. John McDougall for the mission at White Lake.

—W. Ross, C. P. B. Ins. agent, was in town on Monday, having made a trip of inspection through a part of the district. He found the crops turning out from the three most better than had been expected.

—The amount of gold mined on the river here and sold at the banks this year amounts to $4,000. This is a smaller yield than usual due, probably, to the decreased number of men who were grizzly mining on the river this season.

—"Home from the war," the "Jesus in the Temple" are the holiday premium pictures in connection with the Montreal Star. In design and execution they are fully the equals of any of the high class pictures which have been issued by the Star as premiums in former years.

—L. W. Glover, agent for the Newcombe piano came in last week from Toronto, on a business trip. Mr. Glover visited Edmonton some eight years ago, and is very impressed with the improved conditions now existing. He went south on Thursday.

—The Gallagher-Hull Meat & Packing Co., Limited, are issuing to their customers a very striking calendar, the work of Bulmer Bros., Winnipeg. The main illustration is the head of a handsome beaver, the product of the company, and around it are suspended cuts of the bacon and juicy hams which the firm is famed.

—At a meeting held at the rink on Tuesday night, the "Hockey" hockey team was re-organized with the following officers: President, Thos. Hourston; vice-president, Rev. H. A. Gray; secretary, J. H. Campbell; manager, Campbell; and treasurer, Campbell. A captain will be chosen later. Practice nights are Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays.

—The curling club is about in readiness to commence the winter's play. All that is lacking is frost enough to freeze the ice. Advantage was not taken of the few cold days in which the ice for the skating rink was frozen, and the weather for the past week has been too balmy to make ice. The club hopes to have the ice sufficiently hard to-night to have their first match.

—The first calendar of the coming year to come to hand is a very handsome one gotten out by J. H. Morris & Co. It is handsomely illustrated in color and illustrated with four local views. One is a front view of the city, another a view of the city from the top of the hill, taken from the tip of the hill, rig crossing on the ferry, and a view of St. Albert, from the top of the hill to the south. The calendar makes a pretty and useful souvenir.

—The annual meeting of the shareholders of the Electric Light Company was held in the council chamber Wednesday night. Six hundred dollars worth of shares were represented. The following officers were elected: President, John A. McDougall; vice-president, Alex. Taylor; managing director, D. R. Fraser; secretary-treasurer, St. John's directors: J. A. McDougall, K. A. McLeod, D. R. Fraser, W. J. Walker, A. D. Osborne, Alex. Taylor, John Kelly.

OBSERVATION.

Through observation we can see
The errors of mankind.
And view the grandeur of the world,
The product of God's mind.

Through observation we may talk
On topics that are true,
For scenes which cannot be surprised
Are open to our view.

Through observation we may know
Bright thoughts in us arise,
The power of speech reveals them,
And makes us truly wise.

Through observation we decide
There is a "first great cause"
Which has created all we see
By wise and perfect laws.

By seeing nature we behold
The source of joy to man,
Also the wonders of the world
We cannot understand.

The great creator is not seen
By men upon the earth,
He is a spirit who dwells in
Whose life has had no birth.

But our creator "God with us"
Though hid, is nearest hand,
He is the ruler of the sea,
And of the air and land.

We may observe Him by his faith
And trust in His great love,
That we may see Him as he is

RHODES ON SOUTH AFRICAN SITUATION

Recent Cape papers contain the text of Cecil Rhodes' speech at Cape Town, as president of the South African League. In the course of his remarks he said:

"I will tell you who was the cause of the war. We had a party in the House of Assembly called the Mugwumps. (Laughter.) It was the Mugwumps who caused the war, and I will show you how. They were gentlemen who always stood, but they began to wobble, and they decided upon every question according to their consciences—I think consciences is the term. (Laughter.) What happens? We had a redistribution bill, which would have increased the representation of the progressive party in the House. I think any member of the House present will admit that that was the case. Now, if that bill had been carried, it would have given to a majority over the bond of four members. When the Mugwumps came to the House—I don't want to be personal—they voted for the bill because it was due to their consciences, but after doing that what did they do? They voted against the government on a vote of no confidence, and consequently the bill was lost, and on a subsequent occasion we made a compromise, and practically only maintained our position.

"Now, I want to impress upon you that while fighting the election, the state of parties was a tie. If we had carried the redistribution bill the progressive party would have been in a majority in the House. I hold that the progressive party had been dominant in the Cape Colony, with the feeling in Rhodesia, Kruger would not have dared to throw down the gauntlet to her Majesty. (Cheers.) Those are hard facts, and no one can deny them, so I say this in a way we owe the war to the Mugwumps.

Continuing Mr. Rhodes said: "Well, gentlemen, we have had a great battle, and who have we been fighting? We have not been fighting the Dutch—let us be quite clear about that. We have been fighting Krugerism. And if we can only bring the fact home to the people who live with us, the people who are going to develop Africa with us, we shall do good service. You may say: What do you mean by Krugerism? Well, Krugerism is what any one of us may be led into. Given enormous power and a simple-minded people, the tendency is to absorb everything. At first you have, perhaps, a hundred people with an egg in an inner circle, and you gradually reduce them to almost yourself. That is Krugerism, and that is what has happened in the Transvaal.

"The administration of the Transvaal was Kruger. I remember well speaking to Dr. Leyds at Bloemfontein when we went up to the opening of the railway, and I said to him, 'Why do you not impress upon the people that that change?' He replied, 'I assure you, Mr. Rhodes, we have no power whatsoever with him. The government of the Transvaal is Kruger and Kruger alone. I am kept because I am useful; but if you think of influence in the direction of maintaining monopolies, keeping out Afrikaners, and various other gross grievances which he created in the Transvaal, if you think you support him in that, you make a great mistake. Always remember that the government in the Transvaal is Kruger, and that we have been fighting, and it is marvellous, if you come to think of it, how everybody comes to the same conclusion regarding the evils of Krugerism. Now, I suppose there are no three people at the present moment with such different views as Mr. Schreiner, Mr. Merriman, and myself. (Laughter.) I would point out to you that we all three had exactly the same views about Krugerism.

"Turning to the future, Mr. Rhodes observed: 'We have won our two points—the maintenance of the British race and equality of rights.' He went on to make an appeal to the Dutch of this country. 'You are at the parting of the ways. The question of a republic is over, and whether you go before you? On the one hand, you may resolve to continue a sullen apathy and secretly encourage your friends in the late republic to have a successful, and to offer what is called passive resistance, but what would be the result of such a course? The Dutch have gained everything. You may say why?

"I will tell you a story in illustration. Shortly after the raid was in Matibelle, and we were fighting in the hills. We had one of the commandants from the Transvaal with us, with whom I became very friendly, and he said he had left the Transvaal on account of that country being in the hands of the Hollanders and foreign people, whom they disliked. He admitted that the object of the raid was a good one. 'The chief principle in our bond,' he said, 'is the union of South Africa, and though it was the wrong way to go about it, really the object of the raid was the same as ours.' Take another case. Only the day before I was in one of the rooms of those new territories of Rhodesia, in a district occupied by a Dutch trek from the Free State and the Transvaal, led by a member of the Free State, one of the Free State's best men. He said: 'Naturally, we have our sympathies, and cannot hide them. When we hear of a battle, and our men get the best of it, we are pleased, but a wiser thought comes, and we see that the government of the Transvaal is against us—and that is why we brought this trek to this country. And,' he added, in our heart of hearts we are pleased, for we know now that we shall have the union of South Africa.' (Cheers.) For the future there is one great object before us, all of us, that is the development of this country."

A place to break canyons and buy dogs to go on the trail to the Klondike; the terminus of the railroad and therefore the end of civilization; the most northerly municipal settlement in Canada where shaggy and moose teams are as common as horses, and red skins more plentiful than loaves; a jumble of huts on the treeless prairie probably built of mud if there is no stone convenient; a huge camp of hunters and traders living in tents and dugouts, and trading goods for pelts; a H. B. Co. Fort.

These, more or less vaguely expressed, are some of the average easterner's conceptions of Edmonton. The same average man could not tell you whether Edmonton is near Hudson's Bay or the Rocky Mountains. And as geography is the beginning of earthly knowledge, it would be idle to tell him about telephone wires across the Saskatchewan, electric lights in a comfortable, two-story, hospitable, three-story brick blocks, two or three hundred persons, a W. C. T. U., a Salvation army, teachers' institute, a young men's institute, halls, poudres and swallowtails, an annual flower show and a Dominion election without a free fight—all in Edmonton.

The Territories are in sad need of advertisement in Ontario. One of the very best ads Northern Alberta could get east of Fort Francis would be Lowe's Directory of Edmonton. I don't know what this book costs; but as a sheer statistical exposition of census and business facts it would be a "two-time winter" down in Ontario. The gringos don't believe C. P. R. literature down there. They say the Globe editorials of 1900 re the North-west were only Sifton campaign lies. The Canadian Magazine is read by about one-tenth per cent of both gringos and Tories; and the stories in it about whiskey seizures and lying Galicians and N. W. M. P. rackets with half-breeds don't count for much as an inducement to civilians to come out here with a "flunkey." Even the letters of people who live here are discredited. To write your former friends in Ontario about 41b potatoes, 125 bushels in Natal and the feeling in Rhodesia, Kruger would not have dared to throw down the gauntlet to her Majesty. (Cheers.) Those are hard facts, and no one can deny them, so I say this in a way we owe the war to the Mugwumps.

"Now, I want to impress upon you that while fighting the election, the state of parties was a tie. No wonder they say that the farther west a man goes the less respect he entertains for his veracity. They imagine the thin air up here affects a man's brain. But they don't hesitate to call you a lunatic when you affirm that the same thin air makes an egg take a half minute longer to boil. Somewhere up the Rocky Mountains an egg won't boil hard at all. Similarly the Ontario gringos say that there is some point in altitude where a man never speaks the truth. So the easterner discredits the account of the "tenderfoot." The "tenderfoot" carries a salt shaker in his pocket for the "old-timer." And they all speak the truth—their either observe or remember it. But it would take a large memory to keep a mental log-book of the caprices of climate in this country. One "old-timer" tells us it snows in Alberta every month except July. Another one equally veracious asserts that it always snows in July. One says the snow is so deep that the roads are blocked. Another says there is rarely enough snow for sleighing. One says the average Edmonton temperature is higher than at London, England. Another says the mercury falls commonly in winter to 50 below zero. And if you go by these diverse accounts you make Edmonton out as the metropolis of a country where hallstorms are epidemic and where it seldom or never hails at all; a land of wind and of dead calms, of invariably dry weather and of periodical wet seasons sandwiched between dry ones; of three years recurring wet and seven of recurring dry; of Indian summer clear up to Christmas and of 30 below zero in the middle of December, and so on. One says that the easterner says plays hob with a man's veracity. I don't know. But I do know that the average man's brain is a poor substitute for a meteorological log-book and that the average man's face is a poor thermometer.

In this connection I would suggest that another excellent advertisement for Alberta of the whole truth and nothing but the truth about climate's desirable features, would be to scatter broad, verbatim copies of at least seven annual records kept by Alex. Taylor concerning wind, frost, rain, and snow.

And as a letter, because more complete advertisement than Lowe's Directory of Edmonton or the meteorological log-book, let the council make an appropriation to buy up 10,000 copies of the Bulletin containing "the account of the agricultural society's next exhibition down on the flats and broadcast them from Edmonton to Ottawa and from North Bay to Pale Island. Perhaps there won't be any exhibition. The facts are facts, business directories have no motive for census-stuffing, mercury doesn't lie, and the Bulletin has never claimed to be a fool's dream. Anyway at the present the career of Edmonton in the minds of easterners is a tale of Arabian Nights. The sooner the daylight of facts begins to dawn the better for Northern Alberta.

PROB.

In an attack made recently on the Mormon colony of Paschoo, Mexico, 12 Indians and four Mormons were killed. Several were wounded on both sides. A band of Apaches attempted to stampede a bunch of cattle belonging to Mormon settlers. The alarm was sounded, and the Apaches were driven off leaving a number of their dead on the field. Officers from the settlements hastened to Casa Grande for aid. It being feared that the Indians might return and renew the attack, a squadron of cavalry and fifty infantry were immediately started from the Juarez post. The government of Chihuahua also ordered out a force of 100 men. It was first believed that the raiders were from the San Carlos reservation in Arizona, but this is not at all certain, and some of the officials are inclined to believe that the party was composed of Chinichuan Apaches, who fled into Mexico several years ago when the United States government rounded up the Apaches.

A recent Chicago dispatch says: The killing of the negro, Porter, at the stake by the citizens of Lamon, Ohio, Colo., will be brought to the attention of President McKinley by the Methodist ministers of Chicago, who have decided to request the President to call attention in his next message to the 2,000 persons put to death by mobs in the past ten years, and urge him to recommend to congress suitable legislation, which shall secure to every person accused of crime a fair trial, and hold criminally liable all persons constituting mobs which torture, murder and burn.

NOTICE is hereby given that application will be made to the Parliament of Canada at the next session thereof of the Order of Foresters for an Act:

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS.

Nominations for mayor and councillors to take the chairs rendered vacant by the expiry of the term of Mayor MacKenzie and Conns. McLeod, Jackson and Godridge, will be held on Monday next at the council chamber. Elections are one week later, December 10th, Messrs. J. H. Morris, W. T. Henry and J. H. Garriety have been mentioned as candidates for the vacant councilships.

An effort will be made to persuade Mayor MacKenzie to offer for re-election. Should this be successful it is very doubtful if any other candidate will be nominated for the mayoralty, as the present mayor, since his election by acclamation last year, has filled the position with ability and tact.

The announced retirement of Coun. McLeod is very greatly regretted, but it is hoped to bring sufficient persuasion to bear to get him to offer for re-election. His retirement would be a severe loss to the town and his position on the council board would be of great value to the town. The chairman of the board of works has practical experience has been invaluable, and on the general deliberations of the council has shown marked judgment and rare business ability.

HOME FROM AFRICA.

Const. D. McDougall, formerly of the Mounted Rifles, returned here Tuesday from South Africa, where he had served with the Mounted Rifles. Trooper McDougall was invalided home on account of an attack of enteric fever contracted after Pretoria was reached, but has now almost recovered and appears to be in robust health as when he enlisted here, a year ago. He first went into hospital at Pretoria and was later taken to Wynberg, where he was accommodated and attention was all that could be expected or desired. On Sept. 16th he left Cape Town for England on the troopship Kildonan Castle, along with 2,000 other invalids who were returning at the same time. Trooper McDougall had no desire to return, but on being taken with fever there was no alternative. The option of going or remaining is with the Imperial authorities. The voyage to England occupied 30 days, and a month was spent in the old country before he, with twenty-four other convalescent Canadians, left for home on the Carthagenian. When in London the returned trooper witnessed the demonstrations attending the return of the C. I. V's. The crowds, he says, seemed illimitable and the decorations made them cost a fabulous sum, running up into the millions. When he left his regiment in August, all the men from Edmonton were with them, and all in good health. Of the Boer as a fighting man he could say much, "The enemy were always getting out of the way. They are a very elusive foe. The first time the Mounted Rifles formed an acquaintance with the Boers was on Cape Town when they were taken from the train to the ship those captured at Healdsburg and consigned to St. Helena. The Mounted Rifles' baptism of fire was received at the waterworks at Bloemfontein. The next place where fighting occurred was at Vet river, then followed Sand river where there were said to be 15,000 Boers engaged. They only stood a day's fighting before retreating. The C. M. R. were on the left flank under French. It was here the Mounted Rifles were ordered to capture a Boer convoy, not knowing it was protected by artillery. Trooper McDougall says, "I was in command of our men and ordered our men to follow me. There was a Boer in the drift and we were going to have some fun. We got ready, everyone anxious to be first, and trooped out. Soon we came to a barbed wire fence, and beyond it a kopje that we thought unsuitable. The men dismounted and commenced to cut the wire when suddenly from the kopje there came a rain of shells. Over, under and among us they struck. It was a hot corner. One man had hit top of his hat blown off, but was himself unhurt. Several horses were hit but not killed. Capt. Macdonald ordered us to 'walk march' back and would so in order, and without excitement, though with the fusillade still continuing. The shells tore up the ground around us. Gen. Hutton said after that he couldn't understand our miraculous escapes. 'He had been watching proceedings and asked our commanding officer why we weren't ordered to gallop out of such a spot stating that he knew without that proof that the men were brave.' After Sand river the army of occupation marched into Kroonstad without fighting. It was shortly after this that the famous 'shell breakfast' was served, in which Trooper McDougall participated. The C. M. R. were at breakfast in the early morning when a Boer pom-pom, which had been worked up close under cover of the morning mist, unexpectedly opened fire, sent a stream of shells among the men, putting a hurried termination to the breakfast, horses stampeded and an officer's cart, which had apparently been mistaken for a cannon, was broken completely in two by a well placed shot. As in the previous instance the men escaped uninjured.

Another skirmish intervened before Pretoria was entered. The C. M. R. Trooper McDougall describes it as being a city as the Canadian capital. Many civilian Boers who were there making good money selling coffee and sandwiches to the soldiers had been in the fighting line at Belmont, Gras Pan and Modder river. They had dropped out of the war as far as the fighting was concerned. The Mounted Rifles then went on as far as Diamond Hill from whence they returned to Pretoria for remounts and later returned down the line to stop DeWet's raiding expeditions. The first man to be killed in D. Sanderson was killed in D. Sanderson. He was struck by a bullet in the chest. Trooper McDougall went through the Hooning affair, one of the most serious of the war. At Hooning Spirit the Boers ambushed a train carrying some 500 soldiers down the line to Bloemfontein. The train was at Hooning Spirit when DeWet's men blew up culverts north and south, preventing its advance or retreat. The men were released and prisoners armed with obsolete rifles captured from the Boers. A patrol of the C. M. R. was in the vicinity and part of them were cut off. Kerr and Morden were killed. Apple and Verdon, late of Fort Saskatchewan, were made his escape carrying several days later. Trooper McDougall assisted in burying two dead Boers, who were killed by the Canadians.

TROOPER MALONEY'S WELCOME HOME.

At St. Albert last night a complimentary banquet was tendered to Trooper J. D. Maloney, son of D. Maloney, ex-M. L. A., on the occasion of his return from South Africa, where he had served with the Mounted Rifles. Trooper Maloney arrived on Tuesday's train and an enthusiastic welcome was tendered both by his family and his companions in arms—D. McDougall, on their leaving the train at Strathcona. Though unwilling to leave home through an attack of enteric fever contracted after Pretoria was reached, the returning soldier appears now to have quite regained his health. He returns looking better and stronger, and weighing more than when he went away.

Last night's banquet was a welcome home from his friends and fellow townsmen of St. Albert. The banquet was served in the dining room of the Astoria Hotel, which was filled to the limit by its capacity. Many guests were present from Edmonton. Mr. Harry Hope was chairman, and on his right and left respectively sat the guests of honor, the returned soldier, D. Maloney. Alongside Trooper Maloney were seated his late companions in arms, Forbes Groat, and D. McDougall. All the returned soldiers were dressed in their uniforms, one in the rifle dress and the others in the khaki uniform, in which they had marched and fought in Africa.

After the first part of the banquet had been disposed of by full justice being done to the delicacies provided, the chairman called the assemblage to order, and opened the second half of the proceedings by reading letters of regret at their inability to be present from Frank Oliver, M. P., Sergt. Aston, late C. M. R., and Dr. Tierney. Dr. Tierney had been a leading spirit in arranging the welcome home and at the last moment was called away on professional business. He, however, returned in time to share in the inter part of the festivities.

The toast of the Queen was received by the singing of the national anthem. The clinking then read the following address which was handsomely illuminated:

Mr. J. D. Maloney, late Trooper in the Canadian Mounted Rifles, serving in South Africa, St. Albert, November, 1900.

Sir, When Canada called upon her sons for volunteers to serve with the soldiers of the mother country in an arduous and dangerous campaign against a common foe of the empire, you were among the first of those who responded to the call with a promptitude and alacrity which cannot be too highly praised.

The world has since been made aware of how nobly those volunteers did their duty on the trying march, and in the stern conflict of the battle field. In soldiering they covered themselves with glory and lent an added lustre to the name and fame of their native land.

We beg to felicitate you upon your participation in these heroic deeds, and while from all parts of this Dominion we hear of homecoming warriors receiving the recognition of their meritorious services, we, your old neighbors of St. Albert, gladly take this opportunity of tendering you our warmest and most cordial congratulations upon your safe return to family and to friends.

With our words of welcome we beg to offer an accompanying token of the esteem in which your gallant conduct is held and trust that it may prove an acceptable souvenir of the stirring and dangerous campaign from which you have now so happily returned.

In conclusion permit us again to proffer you a warm and sincere welcome home.

J. D. TIERNEY,
HARRY HOPE,
A. C. HEBERT,
